Novartis

- Novartis is a global healthcare company that provides solutions to the evolving needs of patients worldwide.
- Novartis was created in 1996 through the merger of Ciba-Geigy and Sandoz and has a rich history spanning over 200 years.
- Our mission of caring and curing underscores our work, our values and our efforts around the world.
- Our strategy is to deliver better outcomes for patients through science-based innovation. We aim to lead in growing areas of healthcare.
- Strong values define our culture and help us execute the Novartis strategy in line with our mission and vision.

Our Business

- We continuously evolve our business to create a patient-centered portfolio consisting of a wide range of products and treatments to address unmet medical needs.
- Novartis focuses its business on three leading divisions with strong innovation power and global scale: pharmaceuticals, eye care and generics. These three leading divisions are supported by our research organization, the Novartis Institutes for BioMedical Research (NIBR), and a centralized services group, Novartis Business Services, to facilitate collaboration across our divisions, and drive efficiency and productivity gains.

- We aim to develop innovative products in growing areas of healthcare. At the same time, we are expanding our presence in the emerging markets of Asia, Africa and Latin America, where there is fast-growing demand for access to high-quality medicines and healthcare.
